UNIT 1. THE CONSTITUTION

Lesson 1. Language and communication

1. Read the dialogue. Imagine that you are speaking on the phone.

A: Hello!

D: Hello. David Black speaking. May I have a word with Mike?

A: I'll see if he is in (a minute later).

M: Hello David? How are you?

D: Well, thank you. I would like to say that I am going to learn German myself. Have you any German textbooks?

M: No, but you can find it on the Book market. If you buy a good textbook tell me we can do it together. I'll search too.

D: Sure, it is easy to do together everything.

M: Oh, my sister has many German textbooks and she speaks German fluently. If we ask her she will help us.

D: I already thought about it.

2. Read conversational formulas. Dramatize using model - you are leaving the owners with whom you have been staying.

Drop in and see us any time.

You are always welcome.

Keep in touch.

We'll be delighted to see you again.

My love to your family.

Good-bye. keep well.

Have a nice trip.

9. Listen and repeat the new words and make up situation using all words in the box.

ethnic	regional	dialect
fluently	bilingual	multilingual	monolingual

10. Read the text and answer the questions.

People belong to ethnic groups and regional groups such as African-American, Asian, British, Scottish, American and so on. They speak dialects as well as languages. Everyone can speak a native language. We call it the first language. If people speak only native language we call them monolingual. Many of us can speak two or three languages. For example, people who live in Samarkand region know the Uzbek, Russian and Tadjik languages. Russian and Tadjik for them the second language. If we learn a foreign language at school we can speak also a foreign language. If we are constantly in an environment of many languages we understand many languages and can speak different languages. Almost all people in Uzbekistan speak more than one language fluently. We call them bilingual, or multilingual.

Questions:

- What do prefixes bi- and multi- mean?
- Who are you, bilingual or multilingual?
- How many languages can you speak?
- What language can you speak fluently?
- Need we learn a foreign language? Why?

11. Similar adjectives can represent regional groups!

1. Complete this list of the Middle Asia nations by the help of the map. Uzbek, Kirgiz.....
2. The same applies to some Eastern European countries. Armenian, Hungarian....

12. These nationality adjectives have a change in stress from the name of the country. Underline the stressed syllable in each word. Can you pronounce them?

Example: Panama- Panam

13. Correct the mistakes in these headlines.

Election in Canadian today	Hollywood sensation! Madonna speaks the France language?	Vietnamus gets rich
	Britain variant of the English language
Iraqian people protest against U.S. occupation

14. 🎧 Listen to the dialogue.

You will hear four native speakers of English from four countries. Some words will help you recognize their nationality. Put the number of the speaker in the right box.

English		American
Australian		Canadian

15. Write a letter to your friend. You are a student of an academic lyceum. Give some of your news and ask her/him about the news.

2. From the..... language has been changing.
3. During English lessons we rarely stop
4. Some of the linguists consider that when, so will man.
5. In the mountains we found the.... .

18. Read the text and find its main idea.

Language

Language is the most important development of human history. The arts, sciences, laws, economic system, and religions of the world can't exist without language. Humans have not changed biologically for some 40.000 years. However, our ability to communicate has led us from the cave all the way to the moon.

Little is known about the birth of language. anthropologists agree that humans were speaking thousands of years before that.

Today, most of us learn to talk by the age of three, and we rarely stop talking. Even while we are reading or just thinking, we are in a sense of "talking", if only to ourselves. Language is so much a part of human existence that we will be talking as long as we inhabit the earth. As linguist David Thompson notes, "When language dies, so will man"

19. Answer the questions:

1. Why can't we exist without language?
2. Can we speak at the same time when we think about anything?
3. What did David Thompson mean saying, "When language dies, so will man"?

20. Complete these boxes with any appropriate associations with the word "language" from the text.

Albert: I desire to enter the Uzbek State World languages University after leaving the lyceum. Have you any information about requirements of entering.

Begzod: Well, I've read announcement. And I see that there will be a large enrollment. So we will have to work hard at English and other subjects.

Albert: But we've been learning English for three years! If we don't enter what we shall do.

Begzod: Don't worry. We will learn it again.

- 1) When did boys start learning English?
- 2) Do boys have any chance to enter the University even if there is a big enrollment?
- 3) What will they do if they don't enter the University.
- 4) Is Begzod an optimist?

2. Read the formulas and say when can we use them.

Make a dialogue using them.

What a lovely surprise!

Fancy meeting you here!

No is that you?

I couldn't imagine....

And what are you doing here?

It's been ages since we met.

How time flies!

Is that you?

You're the one whom I didn't expect to see here!

12. Continue the list of the words, associating with the symbols of Republic of Uzbekistan.

For example: stripes, stars.....

13. Read the text looking at the picture of the flag of Uzbekistan. Make up 5 questions in the written form, then answer them orally.

SYMBOLS OF THE REPUBLIC OF UZBEKISTAN

The flag of the Republic of Uzbekistan consists of blue, white and green stripes, separated by two narrow red stripes. A crescent and three rows of twelve stars are on the left side of the upper blue stripe.

The blue color symbolizes the sky and water as the principle sources of life. The white stripe is the traditional symbol of peace and of moral and spiritual purity. The green stripe symbolizes nature, the new epoch and abundance in the countries where the majority of the population is Islamic. Besides it is in harmony with the progressive movement of Greenpeace, which protects nature. The red separating stripes symbolize the current of vital energy in any living body and also connect our pure and noble thoughts with the sky and the earth. The crescent of the new moon, along with its traditional historical symbolism, is at the same time a symbol of the birth of republic's independence. The symbolism of twelve stars is connected historically with the solar calendar year, which begins from Navruz and embodies the twelve principles laying in the foundation of state management.

14. Read the text. Name the main details of the emblem of Uzbekistan and say what they mean.

The state emblem of the Republic of Uzbekistan actually absorbes the centuries-old experiences of the Uzbek people. It reflects a blossoming valley and a shining sun. The right side of the valley is set off with wheat and to the left with a cotton plant garland. The octagonal star, symbolizing the unity of the Republic, crowns the state emblem. The Muslim symbols of the crescent and the star are placed inside the star. In the center of the emblem there is the bird Khumo. Khumo with its spread wings symbolizes magnanimity, nobility and service. These symbols reflect the long way of the Uzbek people towards peace, stability, happiness, wealth and prosperity. A little frame with the inscription «Uzbekistan» is placed in the lower part of the state emblem.

15. Write T for true and F for false. Correct the false statements. The first is done for you.

1. T The bird Khumo symbolizes magnanimity, nobility and service.
2. The crescent of the new moon is a symbol of the birth of republic.
3. The principle sources of life are reflected in a blue colour.
4. A crescent and three rows of thirteen stars are situated on the flag of Uzbekistan.
5. The solar calendar year begins from Navruz It embodies the twelve principles laying in the foundation of state management.
6. All symbols on the flag and emblem reflect the long way of the Uzbek people towards peace, stability, happiness, wealth and prosperity.

Lesson 3. Laws in Great Britain

1. Listen and repeat the conversational formulas. Tell when we can use them.

It's my fault that...

Forgive me...

Sorry for doing smth.

Excuse my omission

I apologize for...

It's all right

Never mind.

Forget it.

No need to be sorry

No harm done.

2. Work in pair. Make up a short dialogue as in the models:

– I'm sorry for being late.

– Try not to be late next time.

– Excuse my omission

– It's all right, but next time don't do it.

3. Read the dialogue. Are your expectation right or not?

How well you look!
You don't seem to age.
You are charming.

You have a nice smile.
You are easy to talk.
Exaggerating as usual.
You were fair.

You never change.
You look splendid/ superb
You do a wonderful job as interpreter.
This is your colour.
It just a compliment.
You are really kind.
Well done! Bully for you.

4. Read the dialogue and improvise your own as in the model:

- Well, if it isn't John! How time flies! I haven't seen you for ages!
- It's me. I have been in England for two years. I have studied there.
- You never change. You do look well.
- Exaggerating as usual.
- Not, it's true.

Grammar

5. 🎧 Listen to the anecdote and change it into indirect speech.

6. Remember!

Second conditional sentences express unreal or improbable situations. We use past tense forms to show "unreality" and distance from the present.

*What would you do if you had an opportunity to speak to the President?
If I were in a foreign country I'd see the historical places. I like it very much.*

7. Translate and explain the usage of real and unreal conditional sentences.

Do you think he would be angry if I asked him to help me? Would they come, if we invited them? Should it be necessary, we could make another test. If he should ask you, tell him no news has been received.

8. Copy out the sentences classifying them into real and unreal conditionals.

I shall close the window if you allow. It would be better if you admitted your mistakes. If they listened to us, we could warn them. If you allow me, I shall go to the hotel. We shall be late unless we go much faster. The door will not open unless you press the button. We can go now if you wish. If you check the data, you will find everything in order. He will not run away unless he is guilty. If he should ask, tell him no answer has been received. If the wind increases, I may stay at home. I wouldn't mind a cup of tea. What would you do if you found a ghost in your room?

9. Make up situations as in the models:

- What will you do if there is a good film on TV tonight?
- I'll watch it.
- What would you do if your trip were not organized?
- I'd phone to change the date of the trip.

10. Read the models and compose your own sentences.

If I were younger I could dance.
If he/she were a doctor he/she might treat us.
If the design were better it would be accepted.
If I were not busy I would go to the theatre with you.
Would you write an interesting story, if you were him.

11. Read the situations. Complete the advice. Use the verb in the brackets.

For example: I can't speak English fluently. I don't know how to improve my English. Give me advice!

If I were you I would read many English books, listen to the audio texts.

1) Your friend has a bad toothache.

If _____ dentist. (go)

2) Your brother wants to buy a new bike, but hasn't got any money.

If _____ your parents.

(ask).

3) Your friend always feels tired in class, and sometimes falls asleep!

If _____ bed early.

4) It's cold outside. Your father doesn't know what to put on the coat or suit.

If _____ coat .

5) He tries to catch a bus. At last, he gets in.

If _____ the running bus. (get in)

12. Discussion. Work in groups.

1. Your friend is going to study one of the foreign languages. He/she is asking for your advice. Give him/ her advice, saying. If I were you I would....

2. Your friend has promised his/her teacher to make a report on the topic "Language Similarities", but he/ she didn't find any interesting information.

What explanations would you give to the teacher if you were in your friend's place?

13. Look at the picture and describe it. Imagine that you live in this wonderful place and house in outside of London. Use the conditionals "If I lived there I would/ could/ should...."

14. Read the collective nouns which are used to describe a group of the same things and remember them.

People: a group of people; a crowd of people; a gang of thieves.

Animals: a flock of sheep or birds; a herd of cattle (sheep, deer); a school of fish; a swarm of insects; a pack of dogs, wolves.

LAWS IN GREAT BRITAIN

Britain does not have a written constitution, but a set of laws. The Constitution is not the source of the Law, but the law gives birth to the Constitution in Great Britain.

Parliament is the most important authority in Britain. The set of laws includes: Acts of Parliament, common law and conventions. The Constitution can be altered by Acts of Parliament or by general agreement to change a convention. Conventions control the entire working of the Constitution. Conventions relate to the duties of the King, Ministers and so on. Most of the laws in Great Britain should be contained in the reports of the cases decided by judges of the High Court, Court of Appeal and House of Lords.

The constitution in Great Britain is very flexible, because only Parliament can offer or reject any law. If the King hadn't been a formal head of the government, the Parliament couldn't have offered or rejected any law and changed a convention.

THE U.S. CONSTITUTION

Constitution of the US sets the nation’s fundamental laws. It establishes the form of the national government and defines the rights and liberties of the American people. It also lists the aims of the government and the methods of achieving them.

The Constitution was written to organize a strong national government for American states. The present Constitution was proclaimed in 1787 in Philadelphia. Previously the nation’s leaders had established a national government under the Articles of Confederation. But the Articles granted independence to each state. Thus U.S. Constitution has no force in the federal Constitution. American people in the face of public officials are vested to change the fundamental law, if they wish. The U.S. Constitution includes Amendments.

Amendment 1.

Freedom of religion, speech and the press, rights of assembly and petition.

Congress shall make no law respecting on establishment of religion, or prohibiting its the free exercise ; or abridging the freedom of speech, or of the press; or the right of the people peaceably to assemble and petition the government for redress of grievances. But all the rights protected by this amendment have limits. For example, the guarantee of freedom of religious doesn’t mean that the government must allow all religious practices.

18. Read the text and comprehend it in detail. (“Idea of National Independence.” by I.A.Karimov, 2001.). Answer the questions.

Belief includes itself: ideology, philosophy and convictions.

At first, let’s start defining what is idea? Idea is the product of human thinking.

By the ideology we understand the expression of aims, striving, needs and interest of a nation, people, public groups, various layers of the society. It also involves principles and ways of their realization.

In the history there were a lot of examples when an influence of different ideas and ideologies leaded some nations and states to prosperity and liberty, or to the crisis and death.

Ideology stands on the definite philosophy and enlightenment views of people. Our ideology of national independence based on the traditions of our ancestors, multinational people and human values.

Ideology includes itself as well conviction. A conviction depends on religion and morality of people. The Constitution of Uzbekistan guarantees freedom of religions: Muslim, Christian, Catholic. The idea of religious tolerance contributes creation of peace and agreement in our society.

POLITICAL STRUCTURE OF UZBEKISTAN

Uzbekistan is a sovereign democratic Republic. One of the most important issues in the Constitution of Uzbekistan is the separation of lawmaking power among the three branches of the government: the executive, the legislative and the judicial. The three branches are independent, but each has the power to restrain the other branches in a system of checks and balances.

Executive branch: The chief of the state is the President, the head of the government is a Prime Minister. The Cabinet of Ministers are appointed by the President with approval the Oliy Majlis.

Legislative body is the Oliy Majlis. The Oliy Majlis consists of two Houses: Senate which is the Upper House and Legislative House.

The representatives of the executive power on the corresponding territory are the Khokims of the region, town and district.

According to the Constitution of Uzbekistan only the Oliy Majlis and President of the Republic can be elected by the people and they can act on behalf of them.

The Supreme Court is judicial organ in Uzbekistan.

TEACHING ISLAM

Islam is the name given to the religion preached by the Prophet Muhammad in the A.D. 600. Muhammad was Allah's messenger. He believed he had been sent to warn and guide his people and call them to worship Allah. Those who believe in the one Allah accept Muhammad as his messenger are called Muslims. Muslim is an Arabic word that means one who submits (to Allah)

Islam is one of the world's largest religions. The largest Muslim Communities exist in the Middle East, North Africa, Indonesia, Bangladesh, Pakistan, India, Central Asia. In Europe, Islam is the principle religion in European Turkey and Albania. The once- great Muslim empires no longer exist. But Muslims are still united by the faith of Islam, which forms a common bond of culture among them.

The Koran, like the Bible, forbids lying, stealing and murder. The Koran teaches honor to parents, kindness to slaves, protection for orphans and widows and charity to the poor. It teaches to be kind, honest, industrious, honor, courage and condemns mistrust, impatience and cruelty.

THE STRUCTURE OF GOVERNMENT IN GREAT BRITAIN

In Great Britain the Queen or King is the head of all the branches of government, but she has little direct power in the country. There are three branches in the administrative structure of Great Britain: Parliament, which makes laws, the government, which puts laws into effect and the courts, which interprets laws.

Parliament is the most important authority in Britain. Parliament has two parts: the House of Commons and the House of Lords. The members of the House of Lords are not elected: they sit in the House, because they are bishops of the Church of England, aristocrats who have inherited their seats from their fathers, people with titles. Members of the House of Commons are elected by the voters of 650 constituencies. The party which wins the most seats forms the Government and its leader becomes the Prime Minister. They are known as Members of Parliament (MsP). The Prime Minister is advised by a Cabinet of about 20 other ministers. The functions of Commons are legislation and security of government activities.

Formally the monarch has a number of roles. The monarch performs some important executive and legislative duties including opening and dissolving Parliament, signing bills passed by both Houses and fulfilling international duties as head of state.

17. Read the text and comprehend what religions have been in the Great Britain and with whom religions were connected.

RELIGION IN GREAT BRITAIN

British religion used to be closely connected with kings, queens and politics. England was a Roman Catholic country until 1534. In 1525 King Henry VIII decided to divorce his queen, Catherine of Aragon, because he fell in love with Anne Boleyn. But when Henry asked the Pope for permission to divorce Catherine, he refused. Henry was so angry with the Pope that ended all contacts between England and Rome. He divorced Catherine of Aragon without the Pope's permission and married Anne Boleyn. In 1534 Parliament named Henry the head of the Church of England. This was beginning of the Anglican Church. The Anglican Church did not start as a Protestant Church and Henry certainly did not regard himself as a Protestant. However the protestant movement in Europe was growing very strong at that time. When Henry quarreled with Rome and ordered the Bible to be translated into English, the way was open for Protestantism to be spread in England. Over the next years many people changed to this new religion. In 1553 Mary, Henry's daughter by Catherine of Argon, became Queen of England. The country re-entered the Roman Church, because she was a Roman Catholic. Protestants were glad when Mary died, because while she was Queen, many Protestants were burned for their beliefs. After Mary, Elizabeth became head of the Anglican Church and Roman Catholicism was never again the official religion in England.

The Church of England is still the established church in England nowadays. But in spite of the great variety of forms of worship, only a minority of people regularly go to church in Britain today. Most people see Sunday more as a day for relaxing with the family or for doing jobs around the house and the garden.

ADMINISTRATIVE STRUCTURE OF THE USA

The United States is a federal republic. The Government is divided into three branches: legislative (the US Congress), executive (the President and his Administration) and judicial (the US Supreme Court). The President is elected for four years, and is both head of State and of Government. Congress (the legislature) consists of two houses: the House of Representatives and the Senate.

Elections to the House of Representatives are held every two years, when the whole House of Representatives is replaced.

The Senate consists of two senators from each state, elected for six years. One third of the Senate is replaced every two years. A senator must be 30 years old, nine years a citizen and an inhabitant of the state which elects him. The president of the Senate is the Vice-president of the United States.

The two main political parties are the Republicans (symbolized by an “elephant”) and the Democrats (symbolized by a “donkey”). Learning their programs we can say that there is little difference between their program in national and international policies.

The Supreme Court consists of Chief Justice and 8 Associate Justices who are appointed for life. The Supreme Court is supposed to decide whether a law of the Congress or an executive order of the President is “Constitutional or not”.

2. Read this piece of information, discuss it in pairs, make up questions and give answers. Say what point of view you support that of creationists’ or that of Darwin.

CREATION OF UNIVERSE

The Cristian and Judaic old Testament say that God made the world in six days. First he created light, then divided the earth and the water, then made day and night, then created all the living creatures, and finally made man and woman in his own likeness.

According to Hindus, this is not the first world or universe. There have been and will be many more. Universes are made by Vishnu, the preserved and destroyed by Shiva. From the destructure comes new life.

The Muslim religion says that God created the world and the heavens, and all the creatures on the face of the earth. He ordered angels to go to the earth and bring a handful of soil, which he moulded into a model of a man. He breathed life and power into it/ him, and immediately it sprang to life. This was the first man, Adam.

Darwin's theory of evolution proposed that man had descended from apes, and was not, therefore, a direct creation of God.

Man's origin is debatable. There are two points of view: the creationists and Darwinists. Why did Darwin's theory of evolution challenge the theological one?

16. Read the text and analyse the culture behaviour in Great Britain.

“UNWRITTEN RULES” OF GREAT BRITAIN

Good and bad manners make up the social rules of a country. They are not always easy to learn because they are often not written down in books. For example, British women didn't go into pubs at the beginning of this century because it was not considered respectable behaviour for woman. Now both women and men drink freely in pubs and women are fully integrated into public life. Visitors to Britain are often surprised by the strange behaviour of the inhabitants. One of the worst mistakes is to get on a bus without waiting your turn in the queue. The other people in the queue will probably complain loudly! Queuing is a national habit and it is considered polite or good manners to wait for your turn.

In some countries it is considered bad manners to eat in the street, whereas in Britain it is common to see people having a snack while walking down the road, especially at lunchtime. Britons may be surprised to see young children in restaurants in the evening because children are not usually taken out to restaurants late at night. And if they make a noise in public or in restaurant it is considered very rude. In recent years children are playing a more active role and they are now accepted in many pubs and restaurants.

In recent years smoking has received a lot of bad publicity, and fewer British people now smoke. Many companies have banned smoking from their offices and canteens. Smoking is now banned on London Underground, in cinemas and theatres and most buses. It's becoming less and less acceptable to smoke in a public place. It is considered rude or bad manners to smoke in someone's house without permission.

Social rules are an important part of our culture as they passed down through history. The British have an expression for following these "unwritten rules": "When in Rome, do as the Romans do".

queue – очередь – навбат

to complain – ругаться, жаловаться – сўкинмоқ, арз қилмоқ to ban – запрещать – таъқиқламоқ

17. Write the answers to the given questions:

1. What make the social rules of the country?
2. What was respectable behaviour for women in 20 –th century?
3. What do you know about queuing?
4. What do you think about smoking?
5. What is the important part of our culture?

ECONOMIC FORCES

A number of forces and conditions interact' to determine the price of goods and services in the market. The theory of supply, demand, and equilibrium helps explain the interaction of these forces and their effects on the economy.

Economists define supply as the amount of output of a good or service that producers are willing and able to make available to the market at a given price at a given time. The law of supply states that producers are willing to produce and offer for sale more goods at a higher price than at a lower price.

Demand is the willingness of purchasers to buy specific quantities of a good or service at a given price at a given time. The law of demand states that people will buy more of a product at a lower price than at a higher price.

According to the laws of supply and demand, the lower the price, the more consumers will buy but the less producers will be willing to supply. If the price is so low that producers cannot make a profit, they will not produce and the supply will drop to zero. The satisfaction of both the buyer and the seller will balance at some point called the equilibrium. At the point of equilibrium, demand (the number of units buyers are willing to buy at a given price) equals supply (the number of units the producer is willing to produce at that price). The point of equilibrium, in theory, is the market price.

If the supply is greater than the demand, there is a surplus and the price will fall. If the supply is less than the demand, there is a shortage and the price will rise. It is important to note that supply and demand work simultaneously. As the price of a product goes up, suppliers produce more, and at the same time consumers buy less. As the price goes down, suppliers produce less, and consumers then demand more.

9. Answer the question.

1. What determines the price of goods and services in the market?
2. What do you understand by the word “supply”?
3. What is demand?
4. How does the law of equilibrium work?
5. What happens if the price of the product goes up?

6. Read the text and try to understand the main idea of the text.

COMPETITION

Competition describes the degree of rivalry among businesses for sales to potential customers. At the same time, it describes the constant effort on the part of a business to operate efficiently so as to keep its costs low, develop new and improved products, and make a profit.

The intensity of competition varies from one industry to another. Economists identify four basic degrees of competition: pure competition, monopoly, monopolistic competition, and oligopoly

Pure competition describes a situation in which a large number of small firms are producing identical, or nearly identical, products. Because consumers consider the product identical from company to company and because both consumers and producers know the price in the marketplace, no one firm has the power to affect the price. As a result, the price is set by supply and demand. In pure-competition situations, producers can enter or leave the business very easily.

Except for the fact that it enjoys government price supports, the agricultural industry is a good example of pure competition. Corn from one farm is the same as corn from another farm, and both producers and buyers are aware of the market price.

A company has a monopoly when it is the only producer in a market, an industry or an area. Because of its absolute control, the company can set prices as it wishes and prevent other companies from competing. The company's only constraint on pricing is how much consumer demand will fall as prices rise. Monopolies are prohibited by law with one exception: utility companies such as water and electric companies enjoy monopolies. However, such natural monopolies, as they are known, are regulated by the government.

In 1782, soon after the United States won its independence, the bald eagle was chosen as the national bird of the new country. American leaders wanted the eagle to be a symbol of their country because it is a bird of strength and courage. They chose the bald eagle because it was found all over North America.

Today, the bald eagle has almost disappeared from the country. In 1972 there were only 3,000 bald eagles in the entire United States. The reason for the bird's decreasing population is pollution, especially pollution of the rivers by pesticides. Pesticides are chemicals used to kill insects and other animals that attack and destroy crops. Unfortunately, rain often washes pesticides into rivers. Pesticides pollute the rivers and poison the fish. Eagles eat these fish and then the eggs eagles lay are not healthy. The eggs have very thin, shells and do not hatch. Because many of the eggs did not hatch and produce more eagles, the number of eagles quickly became smaller.

Today, the American government and the American people are trying to protect the bald eagle. The number of bald eagles is slowly increasing. It now appears that the American national bird will survive.

5. Read the text and answer the questions. Then retell it expanding with the information about economy and agriculture of Great Britain which you have already known.

ECONOMY IN ENGLAND

England is one of the world's most highly industrialized countries. Its products include a variety of fish and agriculture, and products ranging from sewing needles to earth-moving equipment. It is a leading shipbuilding country and an important producer of textiles and chemical products. Automobiles, locomotives, and aircraft are among England's other important industrial products.

Heavy industries, such as coal mining, steel production and ship building, declined in England during the second half of the 20th century and were replaced by service industries and hi-tech industries, such as the computer and pharmaceutical industries.

Today England is one of Europe's wealthiest nations and is the wealthiest of four nations that makes up the UK.

Agriculture is intensive, highly mechanized, and efficient by European standards. The main crops that are grown are wheat, barley, oats, potatoes, sugar, beets. Apples are grown in the west. Cornwall and the nearby Isles of Scilly, that have the mildest climate and longest growing season in England, raise winter vegetables, fruits, and flowers for the London Market. Agriculture is heavily subsidized by the European Union's Common Agricultural Policy and it is not known how large a sector it would be if the market was unregulated.

England is one of the world's leading fishing nations. Its fleets bring home fish of every kind, ranging from sole to herring. Kingston upon Hull, Grimsby, Fleetwood, Great Yarmouth, and Lowestoft are among the coastal towns that have large fishing industries.

8. Look at the map of the USA and name the states.

9. Read the text and answer the given questions.

What has the Industrial Revolution brought to the American Economy?
Why were the first settlements financed by the European Kings?
How was the life ways of the first settlers in America?
What is the economical essence of bartering?

THE DEVELOPMENT OF THE AMERICAN ECONOMIC SYSTEM

Originally America's economy was agricultural and resource-based. Then, as a result of the Industrial Revolution the American economy relied heavily on industry. In recent years the American economy has changed once again: it is now a service-oriented, information-based economy. The origins of the American economic system help explain these transitions.

Era European kings financed the first settlements in America. Their goal: to harvest the raw materials of this vast new continent abounding with natural resources. But the settlers had goals of their own, as well as their own views of how the raw materials around them should be put to use. Because many had faced oppressive governments, the settlers resisted control and, instead, sought freedom, liberty, and independence in all things religious and political. The richness of their surroundings offered them perfect opportunities to reach their goals.

Almost all the early settlers lived on farms. Each family member contributed to the struggle for survival and shared in the tasks of obtaining food, shelter, and clothing. Their lifestyles reinforced the belief that hard work, resourcefulness, courage, independence, and self-reliance were the keys to success. These values form the foundation of the American free-enterprise system and still support that structure today.

Colonists relied on bartering, that is, exchanging goods and services for others goods and services, a system that did not require money. As colonial society expanded, colonial trade increased. Settlers began to open small individual enterprises- sole proprietorships, businesses owned by one person. By the 1700s the colonial business world included shipbuilding, fishing, lumber, fur trading, and rum production for export to Britain (with tax and tariff policies heavily favoring Britain). Some entrepreneurial colonists reaped profits from the domestic system. Under this system entrepreneurs - by definition enterprising individuals - distributed raw materials to people who worked in their homes to process the materials into finished goods, which the entrepreneurs then sold at a profit.

In 1776, the United States gained its independence. Its political system, developed by the Founding Fathers, was democratic, based on freedom from government oppression, private ownership of resources and free enterprise. In 1776 in Scotland, Adam Smith published The Wealth of Nations, which set forth his theory of economic system which called for private ownership of property, free entry into markets, and an absence of government intervention. Clearly, America's political system and Smith's economic system were compatible and complementary, and signalled the beginning of remarkable growth in the American economy.

Beginning around the time of the Revolutionary War, domestic trade grew. Colonists began producing a wider variety of goods for domestic consumption and built roads to transport those goods. At the same time, export trade also nourished. While European countries were at war between 1793 and 1812, neutral America found ready markets for its exports.

9. Vocabulary. Read the new words and find their definition in the dictionary. Add the words with the similar meanings.

sales revenues	retail store	expenses and taxes	subtract	intangible
tangible	thrive	asset	income

10. Make up a situation with the new words.

11. Read the text and discuss the business matters in the small groups.

WHAT IS «BUSINESS»?

A business is an organized effort of individuals to produce and sell goods and services for a profit. Businesses vary in size, as measured by number of employees or by sales volume. Large companies such as Exxon and General Motors count their employees in the hundred thousands and their sales revenues in the billions. But most (98 percent) of the businesses in the United States are «small» businesses-independently owned and operated and having fewer than twenty employees. The key people responsible for creating businesses as a result of their original ideas are called entrepreneurs.

Whether a business has one employee working at home, 100 working in a retail store, 10,000 working in a plant or factory or 100,000 working in branch offices nationwide, all businesses share the same definition and are organized for the same purpose; to earn profits. Profit is the money that remains after the costs of a business (expenses and taxes) are subtracted from the revenue received from the sales of goods and services.

The source of a business's revenues, and therefore of its profits, are its goods and services. Goods are intangible items products such as automobiles, shoes, radios, computers, and can openers. Services are intangible items, such as the professional advice and assistance provided by lawyers, doctors, electricians, accountants, and hairdressers.

The American economy thrives on competition. It is based on a system of voluntary association and exchange and is called a free-enterprise or a free-market system. The voluntary nature of association and exchange in the marketplace depends on individuals having the freedom and power to make their own choices, both in what they produce and what they buy.

The free-enterprise system, as its name implies, offers a number of freedoms, including the freedom of choice, the freedom to own property, the freedom to earn a profit, and the freedom to go out of business.

Freedom of choice is every individual's right to choose his or her occupation and place of employment.

Freedom to own property permits a business or an individual to buy or sell land, machines, or buildings and to use these assets to generate income.

Consumers will buy only those goods and services they need or want. Therefore, to be successful, businesses must provide goods and services that satisfy consumers' needs and wants. Consumers need shoes and will buy shoes. Consumers may not need expensive high-tech sports shoes, but they may purchase them if they want them. Thus, identifying consumers' needs and wants are key factors in business success.

12. Read information and underline industries which exist in Uzbekistan. Make scheme of the categorization of the labour force in Uzbekistan and retell about them.

The labour force in Britain can be divided into three categories:

1. Primary industries (agriculture, fishing, mining, quarrying, forestry);
2. production industries (construction, gas, electricity, water, transport and manufacturing, etc.);
3. services (distributive trades, financial, business, professional and scientific, catering and tourism, national and local government).

Lesson 5. Agriculture in Uzbekistan

1. Look at the table and compare the data given there. Add the corresponding data about Uzbekistan, Russia and others.

COUNTRY	POPULATION	AREA IN SQ. KMS	DENSITY OF POPULATION (People per sq. km.)
The United States of America	210,000,000	9,363,000	22
Japan	109,000,000	372,000	293
Brazil	79,000,000	8,512,000	9
Venezuela	11,300,000	912,000	12
Chile	10,045,000	757,000	13
Libya	2,257,000	1,759,500	1

2. Choosing missing words.

Complete this passage comparing the six countries. Use these words only once:

the largest – the smallest – the highest – the lowest – the best – the worst – the most – the least

(1) density of population is in Japan. Libiya has (2) population and (3) density of population. The Japan has (4).....area and population, though the USA has (5).....overseas trade. Chile has (6).....overseas trade and Brazil has (7).....deficit in its balance of payments.

3. Making statements.

“Japan exports fewer goods than the USA” is a true statement about world trade.

Make twelve more true statements from the table below.

Join some of the statements together using “and” “but” and “although”.

Example:

The population of Libya is smaller than the population of Chile, although Libya exports more goods than Chile.

	Russia	exports	more goods than	Russia
	the USA	imports	fewer goods than	The USA
The area of	Japan	is smaller than	the area of	Japan
	Brazil			Brazil
The population of	Venezuela	is higher than	the population of	Venezuela
	Chile	is lower than	the population of	Chile
	Libya	is higher than	the population density of	Libya
The population density of	Uzbekistan	is lower than	the population density of	Uzbekistan

4. Your country's trade with the world.

Find out about your country's trade with the rest of the world and write a short report. Try to find information on these points.

- 1 Your main exports – What they are and to which countries.
- 2 Your main imports – What they are and from which countries. Could they be found or produced in your country in the future?
3. Invisible trade – Does this change your country's balance of payments? What is your country's balance or trade before invisible earnings are taken into account?

Note:

invisible trade – назорат қилинмайдиган савдо-сотиқ — нерегулируемая торговля

5. Choose the best answer to each exercise.

1. The exports and imports of the these countries...
a) are usually different b) always balance c) are invisible
2. Japan exports goods more than...
a) the USA b) Chile c) Russia

6. Vocabulary – word groups.

Put the following words related to the “Travel business” into the correct columns.

detective story jumbo jet engaged title head horror story neck platform nose journey passenger hands helicopter dial take off station face ringing timetable characters train mouth dictionary arrival departure operator biography call return ticket fool

Travel	Parts of the body	Telephoning	Books

7. Infinitive or -ing?

Put the verb in brackets in the correct form infinitive or -ing.

Example: I'd like to go (go) to Greece next year.

- Both my husband and I enjoy _____ (cook) very much.
- Our new neighbours are difficult _____ (get) on with.
- We've decided _____ (move) to the countryside.
- Have you finished _____ (paint) the kitchen yet?
- My uncle needs _____ (see) a doctor about his leg.

Grammar

8. Analyse the related forms with wish presented in the table.

I wish +would	to complain about a bad habit to refer to something that we would like to happen	I wish Farhod wouldn't chew gum all the time. I wish the police would do something about these people!
If only	we replace I wish with If only for emphasis	If only I knew the answer to this question! If only I had gone to your party last week!
I'd rather+ past simple		I'd rather you didn't tell John about this. =If you didn't tell John about this, it would be better.
suppose imagine	in informal speech in place of if	Suppose you lost your keys. What would you do? Imagine you were rich? How would you feel?

9. What would you say in these situations? Use I wish and If only.

- You planned to play tennis but it's pouring with rain.
- A friend has offered to lend you a car while you're in England but you can't drive.
- There's a party this evening but you have got an awful headache.
- You are staying in a Youth Hostel but the person in the bed next to you snores very loudly all night.
- You are only half-way through last question on the examination paper and there's one minute to go before the end.
- You are out walking in New York and you are completely lost.

10 Vocabulary. Try to guess the definition of the new words, then make up situations with them.

irrigative agriculture self-sufficiency aggregate a huge export potential gustatory

11. Read the text and answer the questions. Then retell it expanding with the information about economy and agriculture of Uzbekistan which you have already known.

AGRICULTURE IN UZBEKISTAN

Uzbekistan is a land of ancient irrigative agriculture. The irrigative agriculture is a basis for the food self-sufficiency of the Republic and a source of export products. It provides more than 95 per cent of aggregate plant growing.

The Republic is a main producer and supplier of the most important and strategic product – cotton that has a huge export potential. While the whole of the Central Asia produces about 2 mln. tons of cotton annually, 1,4 mln. of it is the cotton of Uzbekistan. Uzbekistan is in the fifth place in the world when it comes to cotton production.

Uzbekistan is a biggest producer of vegetables, fruits and grapes, many types of which are unique in their gustatory features because of special natural and climatic conditions.

Silkworm cocoons, and astrakhans produced in Uzbekistan are at great demand in the world market.

The main organizational and legal forms of business management in rural areas are cooperative enterprises, joint-stock companies and farms (dehqan farms).

Questions:

1. What is a basis for the food self-sufficiency in Uzbekistan?
2. What is the most important and strategic product in Uzbekistan?
3. What place does Uzbekistan take place as a cotton producer in the world?
4. What are the main organizational and legal forms of business management in rural areas?

12. Discussion “Industry in Uzbekistan”.

13. Read the text and comprehend general idea.

THE FLOWER SHOW

Everyone who went by the flower shop stopped.

Some people said, “He’s crying”.

Others said, “No, he is laughing.”

There he sat, Papa Dent, with the tears running down his face.

Papa Dent loved flowers. He had owned the shop on the corner for many, many years. He worked very hard, but he had a good life. He even made enough money to send John, his son, to the university.

John was like his father. He wanted to go to the university, but then he wanted to come home and help Papa Dent run the flower shop.

The shop on the corner, and everyone knew that the best flowers in town were for sale there. There was no sign that said this. But everyone knew because Papa Dent had been there for many, many years.

When the shop first opened, there was a sign – a great big one. It said:

NICE FRESH FLOWERS FOR SALE HERE

The first customer who came in the door said, “Papa Dent, I like your shop, but I don’t like your sign. The sign says “Nice fresh flowers.” Would you sell any other kind? Why don’t you take off the sign “Nice” and the “Fresh?””

Papa Dent agreed and the sign looked better.

FLOWERS FOR SALE HERE

The second day a man came into the store. He thought it was a fine, new shop, but he did not like the sign. He said, «Where else would you sell flowers if not here, Papa Dent? Take off the “here” from your sign. It will be shorter and better.»

So Papa Dent changed the sign again. It read:

FLOWERS FOR SALE

The third day, Papa Dent’s uncle came to the shop. «It’s a fine shop you have here,» he said. «But your sign says too much: “Flowers for sale.” Of course they are for sale or you would not be here selling them. Why don't you take off "for sale" on your sign?»

So once again, Papa Dent changed the sign. *Finally, it read:

FLOWERS

The very next day, one of the town's officials came to visit Papa Dent.

«We are glad to have you here with us,» he' said. «Your shop is neat and clean. You are a very, clever man with flowers, and I am sure you will do well here on the corner. Your window is beautiful, but I want to make a suggestion about the sign. "Flowers" it says, and it hides the beautiful flowers you have in the window. Surely you do not need it. If people see the flowers, they will know you have flowers for sale. Let your flowers speak for themselves.»

Papa Dent took the man's advice. He took down the sign.

Everyone stopped to look at the fine flowers in the window. Finally Papa Dent's flowers became famous, and no one ever went anywhere else to buy.

So the years passed.

Now Papa Dent's son was coming home from the university. He had a degree in business, and he had done very well in school. Papa Dent was very happy. He would have his son back home. He was glad the boy wanted to work in the shop with him. Papa was getting old. The shop needed some new ideas.

When John came home, he went straight from the train to the flower shop.

«I am home, Papa. And I am ready to go to work.»

When father and son had finished greeting each other, Papa Dent asked, «Now, John, what is the first thing we must do with the shop?»

«Well, Papa, we must advertise. It is necessary in business today,»

«And how shall we do this, John?» asked Papa.

«First, we must make a big sign in bright lights to go over the shop,»

«A sign, John?» asked Papa.

«Yes.»

«And what will the sign say, John?» asked Papa Dent.

«Well, let me think», John answered.

«How about»

NICE FRESH FLOWERS FOR SALE HERE

It was then that the old man sat down making those *funny *noises. It was then everyone who went by the flower shop stopped.

Some said, «He is crying.»

Others said, «No, he is laughing.»

- What rights are included in this charter?
- What organization established the European Commission of Human Rights in 1950?
- What are its responsibilities?
- What are the responsibilities of the European Court of Human Rights?

The Universal Declaration of Human Rights is a charter of civil and political rights drawn up by the United Nations in 1948. These rights include the right to life, liberty, education and equality before the law; to freedom of movement, religion, association, and information; and to a nationality. Under the European Convention of Human Rights of 1950, the Council of Europe established the European Commission of Human Rights (headquarters in Strasbourg, France), which investigates complaints by states or individuals, and its findings are examined by the European Court of Human Rights (established in 1959), whose compulsory jurisdiction has been recognized by a number of states, including the UK. In 1988 the European Court condemned as unlawful the UK procedure of holding those suspected of terrorism for up to seven days with no judicial control.

6. Expand the texts:

1. Human rights are those rights and privileges held to belong to any man, regardless of any legal provision that may or may not exist for them in his legal system, simply because man, as man, may not be forbidden certain things by any government.

2. Civil rights are those rights which are, or which it is argued should be, protected constitutionally or legally as fundamental rights that everyone should enjoy, irrespective of his or her status.

THE TWO MARRIAGES

Mr. and Mrs. Child just do not think alike.

«It's ,too hot in here,» he says.

«No, it's too cold,» she answers.

«We are going to the country tomorrow,» Mrs. Child says.

«No, we are not. We're staying right here in the city,» Mr. Child says.

The house is too small for her. It is too big for him. She wants to take a trip. He wants to spend the money on a new car. She wants to have a garden. He says a garden is too much work.

When his head hurts, her feet hurt. She wants to get places early. He is always late.

They have yet to find two things they both like. He loses everything. She finds it.

She begins to read the newspaper when he has finished with it.

He opens the window when he goes to bed. She closes the window when she gets up.

She says, «Oh, dear. This dress costs too much. I can't buy it.»

He, «answers, «No, it doesn't. I'll give it to you for your birthday.»

«Oh, I'm old and not pretty any more», she cries.

«No» you seem as young and pretty as ever to me,» he says.

«John,» she smiles. «You really do like me, don't you?»

«No,» he laughs. «I love you.»

A man and woman were seated at a table in a crowded restaurant. The owner approached and inquired whether he might seat two men at their table.

«Of course,» said the man. «We'd be delighted to have them sit here.»

As the two men approached the table, the first stranger said, «Thank you. You are kind to let us sit here.»

«Are you friends,» asked the second stranger, «or have you just met?»

«We know each other very well,» the man seated at the table answered.
«This is my wife.»

«Yes,» she sighed. «We have been married so long we think alike, we act alike, and we are even beginning to look alike.»

«We never argue», remarked the husband.

«We never fight», said the wife.

«We always know how the other person feels»; said the husband.

«Many times we do not even need words to know what the other is thinking,» smiled the wife.

«We seldom have a difference of opinion about which books are good, which movies are good, and even which people we like», she continued.

The two strangers looked at the man and the woman while they talked.

The first stranger's face was soft as he turned to the second stranger.

«Are “you not impressed with such love and kindness? I am sure they must be very happy. Perhaps they are the last of the truly happy husbands and wives».

The second stranger did not speak for a long time.

Then he said, «I am nothing if I am not an honest man! But I am not impressed with such harmony. Why have two? One of them is unnecessary!

BRITISH LITERATURE

Great Britain gave the world a lot of talented people. Many famous writers and poets were born and lived in Great Britain.

One of the best-known English playwrights was William Shakespeare. He drew ideas for tragedies and comedies from the history of England and ancient Rome. Many experts consider Shakespeare the greatest writer and greatest playwright in English language. William Shakespeare wrote 37 plays, which may be divided into: comedies (such as A Midsummer Night's Dream), tragedies (such as Hamlet, Othello, King Lear, Macbeth) and historical plays (such as Richard II, Henry V, Julius Caesar, Antony and Cleopatra).

Robert Burns is Scotland's greatest poet. He represents the generation of Romantic writers. In his poems he describes with love and understanding the simple life he knew. Among his well-known poems are Halloween, The Jolly Beggars, To a Mouse.

Lord George Gordon Byron was the greatest English poet of the 18th century. His free-spirited life style combined with his rare poetic gift make him one of the most famous figures of the Romantic Era. His famous works such as Stanzas to Augusta, The Prisoner of Chillon, Childe Harold's Pilgrimage, Manfred draw readers into the passion humors and conviction of a poet whose life and work truly embodied the Romantic spirit.

Sir Walter Scott wrote the first examples of historical novel.

Lewis Carroll became famous when he published Alice's Adventures in Wonderland.

SHAKESPEARE'S SONNETS

In 1609 appeared Shakespeare's sonnets. Never before imprinted. At this date Shakespeare was already a successful author, a country gentleman, and affluent member of the most important theatrical enterprise in London. For his creative life he wrote 154 sonnets. His private friend called them "sugared sonnets". They were written in the old English language. In his sonnets we see the deep of his feelings to the nature, beauty and so on.

1. What is a sonnet?
2. Why are they called "sugared sonnets"?
3. What language did the author use in his works?

12. Listen the sonnet 65 written by Shakespeare and mark how they must be read. Declare it. Answer the questions.

Sonnet 65

Since brass, nor stone, nor earth, no boundless sea,
But sad mortality o'ersways their power,
How with this rage shall beauty hold a plea,
Whose action is no stronger than a flower?
O, how shall summer's honey breath hold out
Against the wrackful siege of buttering days,
When rocks impregnable are not so stout,
Nor gates of steel so strong, but Time decays?
O fearful meditation! Where, alack,
Shall Time's best jewel from Time's chest lie hid?
Or what strong hand can hold his swift foot back?
Or who his spoil of beauty can forbid?
O none, unless this miracle have might,
That in black ink my love may still shine bright.

LORD GEORGE BYRON

George Gordon Noel Byron never lost his sense of wonder at the world. He was a thinker, a philosopher, a poet who was anxious to get to the essence of things. A real artist who lived and acted from impulse, not from rules. Byron's temperament and his sense of wonder made him poet who electrified his age. Byron says: "Nature is society, where none intrudes".

14. Listen the poem by Byron taking into consideration of its intonation and declare it.

There is a pleasure in the pathless woods,
There is a rapture on the lonely shore,

There is society, where none intrudes,
 By the deep Sea, and Music in its roar:
 I love not Man the less, But Nature more,
 From these our interviews, in which I steal
 From all I may be, or have been before,
 To mingle with the Universe, and feel
 What I can ne'er express-yet can not all conceal.
 George Byron.

15. Sharing ideas.

1. Whose society do you prefer that of man or that of nature? Have you ever been interviewed with nature? Do you enjoy nature? It's possible to mingle with Universe? What woods does Byron prefer? Why?

2. Byron lived and acted by impulse not by rules. Is it good or bad? When you do something from impulse you decide to do it without planning and looking back. Rules are official instructions, which tell you what you are allowed to do and what you are not allowed to do. How do you live and act?

CHARLOTTE BRONTE
(1816-1855)

Charlotte Bronte is a famous English writer. The collection of poems by Currer, Ellis and Acton Bell" (1946), which Charlotte Bronte wrote with her sisters, sold only two copies. By this time she had finished a novel "The professor", but it never found a publisher during her lifetime. It was published only after her death in 1857.

Charlotte Bronte wrote "Jane Eyre", which appeared in 1987 and became an immediate success. This novel was dedicated to William Makepeace Thackeray.

The book "Jane Eyre" is the romantic novel that most women would dream for. The story tells us about life of a young woman and how she gets through the troubles of work, a hard life, and heartbreaking relationship. The heroine is a penniless orphan who becomes a teacher, obtains a post as a governess, inherits money from uncle, and marries the Byronic hero in the end.

It has perfect fairy-tale ending in a true love that can never break. Jane worked hard and had a rough life and in the end it had paid off by being with the man that she had loved so much who loves her back. He had said, "I ask you to ass though life at my side, to be my second self and best earth companion".

21. Read the text and ask questions to each other about life and activities of Arthur Conan Doyle.

SIR ARTHUR CONAN DOYLE

Sir Arthur Conan Doyle (1859-1930) was born in Edinburgh, Scotland, to an English father and Irish mother. At first, he studied to become a clergyman, but then in 1876 he entered Edinburgh University to study medicine. He got his degrees in ophthalmology and started his medical practice in 1885. As the story goes, while waiting for his parents, he began writing stories of various genres.

In 1886, he submitted his first full-length story about Sherlock Holmes, the first world’s consulting detective. It was published in “Beeton’s Christmas Annual” in November 1887, and it became an immediate success. Arthur’s father Charles Altamont Doyle, who was an inmate of an asylum for mentally disturbed patients, illustrated it. The illustrations were extremely good, and all the subsequent artists used the image of Sherlock Holmes created by author’s father.

Several times during his career, Arthur Conan Doyle tried to stop writing stories about Sherlock Holmes, but the public demanded more and more, and the publishers were ready to pay him any fee asked. For example, in 1903, an American publisher offered the author 5,000 dollars per story! Doyle wrote in his diary that he had to agree, since the money covered all numerous expenses: he had a father in an asylum; his first wife was an invalid for many years; he had five children in his two marriages. For many years, he was the highest paid author in the world.

In 1902, he was knighted, not for his literary works, but for his medical service in the Anglo-Boer wars, and for his pamphlet which justified the British conduct in Africa.

O. HENRY
(1862-1910)

O. Henry's real name was William Sydney Porter. He is a well-known American writer. He had to earn his living from the age of fifteen and he educated himself with the help of friends. Before he changed his name, he had been a bank office worker, a cowboy, a reporter, and a tramp trying to find a way to make a living. O. Henry had a broad knowledge of the life of common people. They are the main characters of his stories, and their fates comprise those unusual and unexpected plots which never fail to have surprise ending.

The literary legacy of O. Henry includes two hundred and seventy three short stories. Most of them are filled with the writers' warm human sympathy for common people: The Gift of the Magi, A service of Love, The Cop and the Anthem, An Unfinished Story, The Last Leaf, While the Auto Waits, The Third Ingredient, and many others.

ERNEST HEMINGWAY’S LIFE AND HIS CREATIONS

Ernest Hemingway (1899-1961) was born in Illinois. In the Oak Park public school he was fond of sport and where he began writing his first articles in school newspaper called the “Trapeze”. After graduated from the school, instead of going to college following like his parents expected, he took a job as a cub reporter for “Kansas City Star”. When Hemingway turned 18 he tried to enlist in the army, but was deferred because of poor vision. When he heard the Red Cross was taking volunteers as ambulance drivers he signed it up. He worked driving ambulance and saw horrors of war, where he was seriously wounded.

Working in Kansas City Star he learned some stylistic lessons that later would influence his fiction. The newspaper advanced short sentences, short paragraphs, active verbs, authentically, compression, clarity and mimetically, Ernest Hemingway later said, “These were the best rules I ever learned the business writing, I’ve never forgotten them”. He described terrible events in his great novel A Farewell to Arms. Ernest Hemingway’s story Soldier’s Home conveys his feelings of frustration and shame upon returning home to a town and to parents who still had a romantic notion of war and who didn’t understand the psychological impact the war had on their son.

He worked as journalist and he had to many trips. Hemingway wrote a lot of short stories, novels, including Indian Camp, Cross Country Snow,

Another Country. The Sun also Rises Men without Women, The Old Man and the Sea, For Whom the Bell Tolls.

Thus Ernest Hemingway was reporter, soldier, short-story writer, novelist, play-writer, deep-sea fisherman and big game hunter. He is a man whose unique mastery of the art writing influenced the style of an entire generation of writers

And nature's children, laughing, played.
And near you tall and piney wood
Once the war chief's village stood.

Where chants from a thousand throats
Rose unto heaven in sweetest notes,

Here Norail- poot- as lived and died
And now lies sleeping by the tide.

Oh, white man, take this land of ours,
Guard well its hills, streams, and bowers,
Guard well the mounds where Wintuns sleep,
Guard well these canyons wide and deep.

DID AESOP INVENT THE FABLE?

Aesop is the best-known of the ancient tellers of fables. He did not originate the fable but merely adapted a form of the “beast tale” found in many ancient nations. It was natural for early people to compare human motives and actions with the wily fox, the timid deer, and the noble lion; it also followed that forest and earthy animals should express human passions and feelings and speak. These were not children’s playtime stories but rather a national primer on life.

During Aesop’s time there was tyranny in Greece and free speech was dangerous. So the fable took on political dimension. This was the context in which Aesop developed the beast tale, which had earlier flourished in India. He found that this style of primitive wisdom effectively clothed the naked truth, which was so hard for men to look at or talk about. The fable became a readymade weapon for the man of action who united presence of mind with presence of wit.

In English there are a few original fables. The most amusing in Geoffrey Chaucer’s Nun’s Priest’s Tale in the Canterbury Tales, where a cock is held in a fox’s jaw. The cock persuades the fox to speak and is then able to escape.

John Dryden also wrote fables that were cutting satires. In 1727 John Gay sometimes called “The English Aesop” published Fifty-one Fables in Verse.

Each fable has a moral by which the hearer or reader can profit. Thus, the fable, as a form of literature, has roots deep in oral folklore, legend and the supernatural, and mythology

There is a door at the end of a silent corridor. And it's haunting Harry Potter's dream. Why else would he be waking in the middle of the night, screaming in terror?

Harry has a lot on his mind for this, his fifth year at Hogwarts: a Defense Against the Dark Arts teacher with a personality like poisoned honey; a big surprise on the Gryffindor Quidditch team; and the looming terror of the Ordinary WIZARDING Level exams. But all these things pale next to the growing threat of He-Who-Must-Not-Be-Named – a threat that neither the magical government nor the authorities at Hogwarts can stop.

As the grasp of darkness tightens, Harry must discover the true depth and strength of his friends, the importance of boundless loyalty, and the shocking price of unbearable sacrifice.

His fate depends on them all.”

DEBATING “DA VINCI”

An American professor, a beautiful French cryptographer, ... and the true origins of Christianity are the essential characters in The Da Vinci Code. This best selling novel has become a world wide phenomenon, with over 40 million copies sold.

But The Da Vinci Code's 24 –hour thrill ride through “pseudo-history” ignited a firestorm of questions about religion, sex, the Church, Renaissance art, and even the history of the Western World. Plus the new Tom Hanks movie has created even more controversy.

Jesus was married and sired a child-these are easily the most sensational of The Da Vinci claims made in Dan Brown's thriller.

(U.S.News. May 2006)

DA VINCI CODE'S BACKS AWAY FROM BOOK

The novel by Dan Brown posits the theory that Jesus married Mary Magdalene and fathered her child, two ideas that have incited protest from the faithful around the world.

The film opens the Cannes Film Festival tonight.

Screened for critics Tuesday in Los Angeles, the film offers more skepticism to the theory of Jesus' marriage and fatherhood than Brown wrote.

In the movie, Harvard symbologist Robert Langdom (Tom Hanks) expresses doubt about that idea. He says, “History shows Jesus was an extraordinary man. Why couldn’t Jesus have been Divine and still have been a father?:

That line was not in the book.

The filmmakers try to back off from a hard-line stance on the question of Jesus divinity. Says Langdom, near the end of the film, “What matters what you believe”.

Contrary to rumors about the script, there are no scenes of Jesus and Mary Magdalene romantically involved.

However, the movie doesn’t shy away from portraying members of Opus Dei, a conservative Catholic sect, as ruthless and nefarious.

Like the book, the movie puts forth the notion that the church orchestrated a cover-up that Jesus had a line of descendants.

THE FEDERAL RESERVE SYSTEM

The Federal Reserve System – or the Fed, as it is generally known - is the government agency responsible for regulating the United States banking industry. The Fed was created by Congress on December 23, 1913, to maintain an economically healthy and financially sound business environment.

The Federal Reserve System is controlled by a seven-member Board of Governors appointed by the President and confirmed by Congress for overlapping fourteen-year terms. From among the members the President selects the chairman and vice chairman, who serve renewable four-year terms.

The Federal Reserve System consists of twelve regional Federal Reserve District Banks, one in each, Federal Reserve District. In addition, there are twenty-five branch territory banks. Each District Bank is owned, but not controlled, by the commercial banks that are members of the Federal Reserve System.

All federally chartered national banks must be members of the Federal Reserve System. State banks may join if they wish-and if they meet membership requirements.

The Fed's role is primarily to regulate the supply of money and in so doing fulfill its mandate, which is to maintain a healthy economy. The Fed also serves as the federal government's bank and the banker's bank. It fulfills these roles in a number of ways.

The Government's Bank. The Fed performs two important functions for the government First, it produces the nation's paper currency (U.S. dollar bills bear the legend «Federal Reserve Note»). Thus the Fed controls the money supply by printing and issuing new money.

Second, the Fed lends money to the federal government by buying bonds issued by the Treasury Department. By making these loans to the Treasury Department, the Fed finances the federal deficit.

The Banker's Bank. When a bank needs money, it can borrow from the Federal Reserve bank and pay interest on the loan. Banks that belong to the Fed are required to maintain a reserve; this reserve money is kept on deposit at Federal Reserve Banks.

5. Read the text and answer the questions.

MONEY

Money is defined as anything used by a society to purchase goods, services, or resources. Today, most countries use metal coins and paper bills, but items as varied as gold and silver have been used as money.

Money is used to purchase-that is, used in exchange for-goods, services, or resources. The power to purchase, or exchange, is the basis of money's three principal functions.

A medium of exchange is anything accepted as payment. At one time, barter, the trading of goods for other goods, was acceptable. Money permits selling (rather than trading). goods and using the money received in exchange for desired goods. As long as sellers are willing to accept money from buyers, this medium-of-exchange function is being fulfilled.

Because the value of all products and resources are started in terms of money, money provides the means to compare value. Money serves as the standard for the measure of value.

Money does not need to be spent immediately; instead, money can be saved and spent later. Thus the value of money can be stored, and storing value allows wealth to be accumulated.

This stored value is not constant, however. The value of money fluctuates with the economy, losing value in periods of deflation.

Money must meet certain criteria in order to be acceptable. First, money must be trusted. Also, money must be convenient to use. For example, when the U.S. Treasury issued the Susan B. Anthony silver dollar coin, the particular coin was never widely circulated.

The five important characteristics of money are portability, divisibility, stability, durability, and authenticity.

Currency comprises not only all paper money and coins issued by the government but also money orders, travelers' checks, personal checks, and bank checks or cashier checks, issued by banks against secure bank funds. All these forms of currency are acceptable for payments.

1. What are the functions of money?
2. What is the medium of exchange?
3. What is the measure of value?
4. How can the value of money be stored?
5. What criteria should money meet in order to be acceptable?

3. Can the things replace money in some situation.

7.Organize the discussion of "Time is Money" in small groups.

8. Read the text and try to explain difference between types of plastic money Listen to the additional information about money

PLASTIC MONEY

Plastic money, or credit-card purchasing, has become a major factor in purchasing goods and services. Although credit cards serve as a substitute for money, they are, as their name implies, really an extension of credit, not money.

The overall supply of money helps determine its value. If there is too much money in circulation, its value or purchasing power-drops, leading to inflation. However, it is difficult to measure the amount of money in circulation.

Three specific measurements of the money supply—M-1, M—2, and M-3—are discussed on the following page.

M-1 is a measure of money supply that includes only the most liquid forms of money. M-1 measures currency, demand deposits, and other checkable deposits (that is, deposits, against which checks can be drawn).

M-2 includes M-1 plus other types of money that can be easily converted to spendable forms, namely, time deposits, money-marked funds, and savings deposits.

M-3 includes M-2 plus time deposits over $100,000 plus term repurchase agreement.

BANKING SYSTEM

Many forms of money, especially demand deposits and time deposits, depend on the existence of financial institutions such as commercial banks, saving and loan associations (S&Ls), mutual saving banks, credit unions, and nondeposit institutions such as pension funds, insurance companies, and finance companies.

Commercial banks are profit-making organizations that accept deposits, make loans, and supply related services to their customers. Their input is the deposits they receive, for which they pay depositors interest. Their output is the loans they grant, on which they charge interest. If successful, their income exceeds expenses and they earn a profit.

These banks must conform to all federal banking regulations and are subject to unannounced visits by federal auditors.

State banks are commercial banks chartered by the states in which they operate. State banks tend to be smaller than national banks. State banks are subject to unannounced inspections by both state and federal auditors.

Mutual Saving Banks are owned by their depositors. They accept deposits, and they make home-mortgage loans. There are no stockholders: the profits are distributed to the depositors. Almost all mutual savings banks are state-chartered: they are mainly found in central cities of the Republic of Uzbekistan..

Like mutual saving bank, credit unions are owned by the depositors (called members). Credit unions accept deposits only from members and offer loans only to members. Credit unions are generally formed by a member of a company where he is the employer, or a union, or an institution such as a college or university.

Nondeposit institutions, which comprise pension funds, insurance companies, and finance companies, are also part of the banking system.

Pension funds and insurance companies accept funds and invest them in stocks, bonds, or other securities, or they lend the funds in the form of mortgages for large commercial real estate projects.

Finance companies lend smaller amounts of money, generally to individual consumers.

THE LOVE LETTER

Once there was a boy who loved a girl very much. The girl's father, however, did not like the boy and did not want their love to grow. The boy wanted to write the girl a love letter? But he was sure that the girl's father would read it first. At last he wrote this letter to the girl.

The great love I said I said have for you

Is gone, and find my dislike for you increases every day.

When I see you, I do not even like the way you look:

The one thing I want to do is to look the other way.

I never wanted to marry you. Our last conversation was very dull and in no way has made me anxious to see you again.

You thing only of yourself.

If we were married, I know that I would find life very difficult, and I would have no pleasure in living with you. I have a heart to give, but it is not a heart

I want to give to you. No one is more demanding or selfish than you, and less able to care for me and be of help to me.

I sincerely want you to understand that I speak the truth. You will do me a favor if you consider this end. Do not try to answer this. Your letters are full of things that do not interest me. You have no true concern for me. You have no true concern for me. Good bye! Believe me, I am still your loving friend.

The girl's father read the letter. He was pleased, and then gave letter to his daughter.

The girl read the letter and was very happy. The boy still loved her!

Do you know why she was pleased? She and the boy had a secret way of writing to each other. She read only the first line of the letter, and then the third line. And then the fifth line, and so on, to the end of the letter.

15. Read the text and answer to the questions below.

COMPUTER AGE

Computers are penetrating all spheres of human activity, in many of them they have become indispensable. They calculate orbits, guide spaceship and planet, calculate targets of economic development, play chess, teach pupils, and help housewives to choose a menu.

Some scientists say that the 21-st century world is impossible without the computers. Computers today are running our factories, planning our cities, teaching our children and forecasting our future. The computers solve, in second, the problems of a generation of mathematicians would need months or years to solve without its help. If we are to believe some forecasts, computers, like the telephone or electricity, may become a common thing of every day used by almost everybody. They can even enter our home life.

They can help make up a person's shopping list, remind someone of important appointments and anniversaries and answer the telephone. We often hear that the increasing flood of information will be one of the problems of the 21-st century.

A computer may help solve it too. In a computerized library of the future request for information will be answered instantly and as fully as the user wants. It's hard to enumerate all the uses the computer may be put to.

1. What human's activity are computers used in?
2. Why do we need in using computers at home?
3. Can the 21-st century exist without computers?
4. How often can we see computerized equipments at lyceum?

7. Repeat the sentences after your teacher, paying attention to the intonation.

It's in a great demand..

The Ultra Mobile PC- is a very small touch-screen PC.

It's a seven-inch, a weight of two-pounds; wireless networking; and, of course, Windows XP.

You discover that there is no keyboard, trackpad or CD drive- or palmtop that is so huge you need two hands to operate it.

If something on the screen is big enough, you can just tap it with your finger.

8. Read the words and answer the question: “What sets of computers do you know and how can we operate them?”

hardware – the machine, wiring and other physical parts of a computer software- a programs and other operating information used by a computer palmtops— small and light computer to be held in one hand cellphones- a mobile phone touch-screen- a display device which allows the user to interact with a computer by touching areas on the screen inch – a unit of length equal to 2, 5 cm.

keyboard- a panel of keys for use with a computer

trackpad – the area of moving or direction

CD drive- operate by compact disc

DVD drive-operate by the digital versatile disc to tap - to press

tiny system tray - little system container icon- symbol on a computer flimsy plastic stylus- weak plastic pen-like device used to input handwriting directly into a computer nubbin – a central point of matter labeled Menu- classifying name “Menu”

to hook up- link to electronic equipment laptop –a portable microcomputer

9. Read the article and answer the questions:

1. What is touch screen PC?
2. Does it have trackpad system?
3. How can we operate with it?

Microsoft's mobile PC answers leave question: Why?

According to the legend, students in journalism school are taught to remember the five W's: who, what, when, where and why.

This week Microsoft introduced a new kind of computer called the Ultra Mobile PC- and there are good answers to four of those questions.

Who: Microsoft designed the hardware concept and wrote the software for it, just it has in past years with palmtops, cellphones and media centers. So far, companies like Samsung, Asus and TabletKiosk have signed on to make and sell Ultra Mobile PCs.

What: The Ultra Mobile PC- is a very small touch-screen PC. It's a seven-inch, a weight of two-pounds; wireless networking; and, of course, Windows XP. There is a 40-gigabyte hard drive, 512 megabytes of memory and a 900-megahertz Celeron processor. Holding an Ultra Mobile PC in your hands is very cool and exciting for the first 30 seconds. You discover that there is no keyboard, trackpad or CD drive- or palmtop that is so huge you need two hands to operate it.

The trackpad problem is survivable, thanks in part to the touch screen. If something on the screen is big enough, you can just tap it with your finger. When the targets are not so big- the tiny system tray icons, for example- you can tap the screen with the flimsy plastic stylus. You can also move the cursor by pushing against a textured, eight-directional nubbin with your left thumb- while pressing a button labeled Menu with your right thumb. And you can "click the mouse" by pressing the Change Resolution button, also while pressing the Menu button.

When: The Samsung is available now, and its successors will arrive by the end of the year.

Where: An Ultra Mobile PC is handy at boardroom presentation: hook it up to a projector and tap through PowerPoint without having to bring a laptop. Airplanes tray tables come to mind, too. Music, photo and video playback are all easy to operate with fingers. But the Samsung battery lasts only about three hours, and there is no build-in DVD drive.

Why: The Ultra Mobile PC will exist because a touch screen might be useful in some industries like insurance investigation and package delivery.

In short, the lesson missed by the Ultra Mobile PC's creators comes from the School of Common Sense.

10. Read this funny sketch. Which of these statements are not true ? Prove your statement using the following phrases: It's not true because...,that's why..., I'm sure that...,

At the Globe Theatre

(Two tourists are visiting the exhibition at the Globe Theatre)

A: Look at all these things from the theatre in Shakespeare's time!

B: Yes, isn't it exciting? There's Shakespeare's computer!

A: No, that's impossible!

B: What do you mean?

B: Well, Shakespeare didn't use a computer.

A: Didn't he?

B: No, they didn't have computers in those days. Shakespeare used a typewriter.

A: Oh, yes, of course.

B: Do you think that's Shakespeare's TV?

A: Where?

B: Over there. It's very old.

B: No, Shakespeare didn't have a TV.

A: Why not?

B: Because he went to the theatre every night. He didn't have time to sit at home and watch TV.

A: No, of course not.

B: Look at these! Cassettes of all Shakespeare's plays!

A: Did he have a cassette recorder?

B: Yes I am sure he did. I expect he recorded all his plays at the Globe Theatre.

B: Oh, and here's an old telephone!

A: Hey, why don't we call Shakespeare!

B: Don't be silly! We can't call him.

A: Why not?

B: Because we don't know his phone number!

WAYS OF COMMUNICATION

Alice: I know you've got a fax machine, do you use e-mail?

Nick: No, but I use only the fax. I think e-mail is rather expensive form of sending letters because you've got to pay the subscription to the company.

Alice: E-mail is actually better than fax-machine because it's much faster. And I bet you thought you'd never have anything as advanced as a fax machine, but.....

Nick:with a fax you're just paying for a simple phone call.

Alice: I agree. And a fax is still a good way of sending visual information, such as drawings and diagrams. But, you know, a lot of people like to be.... kind of... contacted by e-mail. It's quite a sociable thing, you know, because you can't actually understand its advantage.

Nick: I can't believe that! I think, it's much better to have a handwritten letter, surely?

Alice: Well...but e-mail are used by progressive people and....

Nick: It sounds horribly cold to me.

Alice: Well, no... not really, because you can be quite sociable, you can chat to people, you send something, somebody sends something back. You know, you can do an odd line here, an odd line there. It's good.

Nick: No, I disagree. I don't think it's very sociable to be contacted by e-mail and be talking to a computer screen. I mean it's like talking to a robot.

Alice: Well, I think it's good to be connected to e-mail, because it is a very spontaneous way of communication with people all over the world.

Nick: What about the Internet? I mean, you've a huge fan of that, at the moment, aren't you?

Alice: Well, I am actually. I mean, I don't think it should be government controlled, because then, you know, you lose your freedom of speech, you lose...

Nick: I can see what you're saying, but I believe there should be some control over the Internet, otherwise it could be used as a way of sending political propaganda. I think that is wrong.

Alice: Yeah... there are a lot of people that are afraid of being censored by the government...

Nick: Well, people are being censored right now... And... in lots of different ways. Why do we just use the Internet as an argument there?

Alice: I see you point, but what about TV then, what are your views on that? Because I think if you can watch TV station from anywhere in the world then obviously it's going to help you to find out about other cultures. You know being connected to cable and satellite and TV isn't as expensive as you might imagine.

Nick: No, if there's a lot of satellite television coming in and it's all in different languages, it's not much use if... because you won't understand it!

Alice: I suppose so. But you can still look at the pictures.

7. Complete the sentences summarizing what Alice says. Use the information above.

11. 🎧 Listen to the text and make two lists for writing down arguments in favour of e-mail, Internet, computer game and mobile phone and against.

12. Vocabulary work. Read the new words and their definitions.

genetic engineering cloning techno multi-media virtual reality desirable mess nightmare

genetic engineering- when scientists change the genes of a person, plant or animal cloning- is the technique of producing a genetically identical duplicate of an organism desirable= necessary

mess- make untidy or dirty

nightmare- a frightening or unpleasant dream

Techno – electronic dance music with strong, fast beat multi-media- using a mixture of sound, pictures, film and writing to give information virtual reality- using computer images and sounds to make things seem real when they are not

13. Make up sentences with these words. Brainstorm advantages/ disadvantages of these technological development.

14. Where are techno, multi-media and virtual reality usually used?

15. Read the interview “The Problem of Cloning” and answer the questions.

A: If you can spare a minute, we’re conducting a public opinion survey on how people feel about cloning. You will have heard that some scientists are planning to clone human being. In fact, they claim they will have done it by the end of the year. In your opinion, is this desirable?

B: Generally speaking I am suspicious of any forms of genetic engineering.... though people do talk about there being quite a few benefit associated with genetic engineering. In terms of health and dealing with certain diseases, or even solving the world’s food problems. However, that doesn’t mean scientists should be allowed to make human clones. Personally, I can’t think of any good reasons for it. It’s unnatural- nobody has the right to mess around with nature like that. Cloning may lead to a nightmare world.

1. What is cloning?
2. In what purposes has genetic engineering been developing?
3. Is it natural to mess human being?

16.Using the following phrases try to make up a topic, pay your attention of using prepositions.

noun	research	lecture	example	discussion
verb	believe	insist	approve	chat
adjectives	interested	keen	afraid	nervous

18. Read the text and answer what do you think of Howard Stapleton invention?

ANTI-TEENAGE INVENTION

Though he didn’t know it at the time, the idea came to Howard Stapleton when he was 12. One day his father took him to the factory where he worked, but the boy suddenly refused to go inside one of the rooms.

“The noise!” he complained.

“What noise?” the grown-ups asked.

As you probably know, children and young people can hear high-frequency sounds that grown-ups can’t.

Knowing this, Howard Stapleton has invented a gadget that can stop teenage gangs from hanging around outside shops and causing trouble.

The gadget sends out high-frequency waves that can be heard by most people younger than 20 and almost no one older than 30. Howard called his invention “the Mosquito”. “It’s small and annoying”, he says.

The first “Mosquito” was put up outside a shop in Newport, Wales, and the result was almost immediate. A group of teenagers gathered near the shop as they usually did (though they were supposed to be at school) but five minutes later they ran away-with their fingers in their ears!.

“The sound is loud squeaky and just goes through you” said one of the teens.

Some shop owners say, however that the Mosquito is the waste of money. Classical music, too, horrifies teenagers.

gadget- a small mechanical device to gang- joint together to hang around- wait around

1. Read and learn the poem by W.H. Auden. What grammar material can you find in the poem?

The more loving one

Looking up at the stars, I know quite well
That, for all they care, I can go to hell,
But on earth indifference is the least
We have to dread from man or beast.

How should we like it were stars to burn
With the passion for us we could not return?
If equal affection cannot be,
Let the more loving one be me.

JUDGING PEOPLE

«I know all about people,» the professor says. «I teach psychology, and I have studied people for many years. This one is fat. He eats too much. This one is sick. I can tell by his face. I see boys and girls, men and women all day. I know about people.»

«I have lived on a farm all my life,» the farmer answers. «I have not had much education. Perhaps you can teach me something. Do you see those people over there? Can you tell me where they are going?»

«I think I can,» said the professor.

«That little, old lady is going into the drugstore. She has a headache.

«The strong, young man is going into the sport shop. He is an athlete. The man with the long hair is going into the barbershop.

«The fat woman is going to the candy store, of course».

«The pretty, young lady is going into the beauty shop».

«There. Do you have any questions?»

«No,» says the farmer, «but I think you are wrong.»

«I am never wrong about people,» smiles the professor. «You are wrong this time,» answers the farmer.

«I think the little, old lady is going into the sporting goods store. The fat woman will go into the barber shop. The man with the long hair is going into the beauty shop. The strong, young man is going to the drugstore. The pretty, young lady will go into the candy store.»

They watch the people walk into the stores.

«Well, well,» says the professor. «You are right, and I am wrong. How did you guess so well? You have not had my experience with people.»

«Perhaps not,» smiles the farmer. Then he explained.

«The little, old lady works in the sport shop».

«The barber is the fat woman's husband».

«The man with the long hair owns the beauty shop».

«The strong, young man has a headache. He is going to buy some aspirin.

«The pretty, young woman is going to buy candy. Today is her son's birthday.»

«Ah, this is «unfair!» the professor says.

«Yes, a little», laughs the farmer.

«You cannot know the strong, young man has a headache, and the pretty, young lady has a son. Perhaps you are wrong about those two.»

«No, I know,» answers the farmer. «I am sure about it.»

«You cannot know,» says the professor. «I think you are guessing!»

«Oh, no, my friend. I am very sure. The strong, young man is my son. The pretty, young lady is my daughter.»

THE NATURE OF TRUTH

A long time ago a King complained to Nasruddin, “My people do not always tell me the truth. This bothers me greatly”

Nasruddin answered, “It does not matter whether something is absolutely true or not. What matters is that something is true in relation to a particular idea or situation”.

The King was not pleased. “This is just one of your tricks. A thing is true or it is not true. It cannot be true one day and not true the next”.

The King thought of a plan to make his people tell him the truth. He had a gallows built just inside the city gates. He told the heralds to announce, “If persons wants to enter the city they must first answer a question asked by the Captain of the King’s Guards. If the answer is not truth, the person will be hanged”.

Nasruddin came forward. “I want to enter the city”.

“Why do you come?” asked the Captain.

“I come to be hanged”, answered Nasruddin.

“This is not true”, said the Captain.

“If I am not telling the truth you must hang me”, said Nasruddin.

“But this would make it the truth”, complained the Captain. “I cannot hang you if you tell the truth”.

“You must decide, which truth is the real truth?” asked Nasruddin.

There were several reasons why I decided to attend Bingston University. My chief reason for choosing that university was its wonderful study and work program in agriculture, my chosen field. The university requires all its agriculture students to gain practical experience by working on farms in the area while they are still to school; I knew that this would provide invaluable experience and prepare me to use the skills I had learned in the classroom. Second, Bingston hires only the finest teachers. Then, too, there was Bingston's deferred payment plan; this represented a great convenience to my parents. A final reason was the reasonable tuition job, living, work, business

22. Read the text and make up a topic following to advice from the text.

CHOOSING A JOB

One of the most difficult decisions is choosing the job what to do for a living. For example, do you want to follow a definite career, and earn a low salary at the beginning, but have good prospects in a company that trains its staff? Or are you more interested in taking any kind of work, because you need an income? You may have to face up to the fact that a good job can be difficult to find in that case, why not take a temporary on? You will gain some useful experience. Remember that even if you have the right a qualification, you may have to fill in lots of applications forms before you are asked to attend an interview. But don't worry if you don't know what you want to do exactly. You'll enjoy finding out!

23. Read the text, paying attention to PI and PII. Write about another place, which you remember using PI and PII.

After all these years I can picture that old time to myself now, just as it was then; the white town drowsing in the sunshine of a summer's morning; the streets empty or pretty nearly so; one or two clerks sitting in front of the Water Street stores, with their splint-bottomed chairs tilted back against the walls, chins on breasts, hats slouched over their faces, asleep.

(Mark Twain, Life on the Mississippi)

24. Read the text paying attention to the infinitive and -ing constructions. Explain their functions in the text.

“I say, Dad”, said a schoolboy returning home and looking very proud. “We gave a wonderful performance at school. A lot of parents came. Though of them had seen the play before they enjoined watching it”

“How do you know?”-asked the boy's father.

“I saw some parents smile and I heard others laugh all through the performance. They seemed to enjoy watching the play as much as we enjoyed acting it. We are going to act the play again and I want you and mother to go and see it by all means”.

“And what is the name of the play?” –asked the fond father smiling.

“Hamlet’ was the answer.

March 27, 2007

Dear sir:

Although I have not yet completed my education in the Academic lyceum under the Uzbek state world languages university, I am submitting my application for your internship on the advice of the one my teacher, Qurbanov Anvar.

To focus of my study here at the Academic Lyceum under the Uzbek state world languages university was mastering English. But I haven't practice.

I intend to work as secretary-referent. As I am planning a career in interpreter work. My working at your office would be a great opportunity to have experience.

My grade point average in graduate school has been excellent. I am enclosing a list of my pertinent graduate and undergraduate courses. Of course, I haven't yet received final grades for those classes which I am currently taking, but my present grade is A in each of them

Thank you for considering my application. In July 5 I had the pleasure of visiting your office for the first time to see staff. I am certain I would enjoy working in your office.

Sincerely
Ashrapov Begzod.

6. In pairs, complete the questionnaire below about polite behaviour in your country.

Example:

A.: Do men have to wear jackets and ties in restaurants?

B.: It depends on the restaurants. You don't have to in most restaurants but you're expected to wear a jacket and tie in expensive places.

7. Compare your answers with other pairs.

8. Read and analyse the cultural information. What have you found out interesting by reading text?

IN GREAT BRITAIN

The waiter with the bill is called up the same was as in America. It contrast to America, here it is disliked when the interlocutor is looked straight into the etc.

Victory (clenched first, two fingers forefinger and middle finger look up. The hand is turned palm outside) means, as in many countries, victory or luck.

But it is strongly recommended not to imitate a V, turning the palm towards yourself this is the most offending sign for Englishmen. It shameful to even says what it means.

The gesture with which the Romans sent gladiators to die (thumb down), in England means obvious displeasure.

When a Britain drums his forehead with his finger, he does not imply that the interlocutor is dumb. He implies that he is smart.

IN THE USA

American value straight look in the eye very much. If you look aside while talking, they might think that you are uninterested or bored or, worst of all, hiding something from the interlocutor.

Two gestures are considered to be offending. Firstly, the well known from cinematography bending of the left hand in the elbow and clasping it with the right palm. Secondly, when the middle finger is straightened and directed upwards and the rest of the fingers are bended.

Winking can be interpreted in different ways depending on the situation. It is better not to risk.

When calling the waiter, do not wave your hands it is enough to raise your hand a little above the head. One must raise both hands and imitate writing something on the left palm in order to receive the bill.

Forefinger and thumb folded in a ring means all is OK with that person life turned out well and there is no need to worry. This gesture gained an international popularity, particularly in Uzbekistan it is often used by the youth.

9. Find information about specific gestures which we use in Uzbek culture and define the differences and similarities in these countries. Fill the table.

AUDIO-TEXTS

Unit 1

Lesson 1. (14)

Jane: Where do you come from?

George: From Ottawa.

Bob: How interesting! I think, you are from Sydney.

Jane: Oh, no, I'm from Sydney. Don't you see our national emblem "Kangaroo" on my top?

Andrew: Bob, look at me! Your hat and jeans testify that you live in Texas.

Jane: You are right! Andrew, your specific English say me mixes of English and something else, don't you?

Andrew: In fact, I live in outside of London that's why I sometimes speak Cockney dialect.

(Jane- Australian, George- Canadian, Bob- American, Andrew- Englishmen)

Lesson 2. (19)

Do you know that:

1)The national flag was approved by the Extraordinary 8th Session of the Supreme Council of the Republic of Uzbekistan on November 18, 1991.

2)The state emblem of the Republic of Uzbekistan was approved by the 10th Session of the Supreme Council of the Republic of Uzbekistan on July 2, 1992.

3)The state anthem of the Republic of Uzbekistan was approved by the 11th Session of the Supreme Council of the Republic of Uzbekistan at the 12th convocation on December 10, 1992. The lyrics are by Abdulla Aripov and the music by Mutal Bourkhanov.

Lesson 3. (5)

Lesson 3 (21)

British Parliament first met in the 13th century. In 1689 Mary II and William III became the first constitutional monarchs. They could rule only with the support of the Parliament.

The continuity of the English monarchy has been interrupted only once during the Cromwell republic. Succession to the throne is hereditary but only for Protestants in the direct line of descent. The present sovereign is Queen Elizabeth II who was crowned in Westminster Abbey in 1953.

Lesson 4 (21)

Damir: “There are different ways of getting secondary and specialized education. After leaving 9-year school, pupils may go to academic lyceum, or professional college and thus learn profession and get an education simultaneously. The study at the academic lyceum directed to the further education to have some profession.

Nargiza: We know our state needs many skilled workers. That’s why while choosing way in life, we must also think of the country needs and interests. When everybody works better, all the factories and farms work better and all the people live better. Our Constitution gives everybody the right to work even open the private business.

Botir: Our Constitution lays down such basic duties of Uzbekistan citizens as the duties to protect property, to safeguard the interests of our state and defend our Motherland, to serve in the ranks of the Armed Forces of the Republic of Uzbekistan, to respect rights and duties as lawful interests.

Unit 2

Lesson 1 (4)

- Is there anything I can do? I’d like to help in some way if I can.
- Certainly, washing clothes.
- But it will take the all day, won’t it.
- It only takes three hours.
- Does it. I didn’t know that.

Lesson 1 (5)

A: When can we expect you for dinner? Can you come tonight?

B: Not tonight. I promised to go to a concert with my sister.

A: Well... How about Friday then?

B: That’s sounds fine.

A: Good shall we say seven o’ clock?

B: I’ll be there! You are still a wonderful cook, aren’t you?

A: That’ll be for you to decide. I’ve got a new dish that I want to try out on you.

B: I’m ready. I think I’ll fast all day Friday!

Lesson 3 (3)

Somebody is knocking at the door.

Somebody is singing.

Somebody is taking a hard breath.

Somebody is playing the guitar.

Somebody is talking.

Somebody is laughing.

Lesson 3 (14)

“I offer to tax cuts on capital gains and dividends. This legislation prevents a 70 billion dollars tax increase on the American people and ensures continued economic growth and job creation. These provisions have prevent to strengthen our economy. You should support me .”

Lesson 4 (15)

Washington is the capital of the USA, it owes much to the first President of the USA- George Washington. It was G. Washington, who chose the place for the district and laid in 1790 the corner-stone of the Capitol, where Congress sits. Not far from Capitol are monument of Washington and memorials of Thomas Jefferson (3-d president), Lincoln (16th president). On the other bank of the Potomac lies the Arlington National Cemetery where President Kennedy was buried.

Washington is a one-industry town. That industry is government. It doesn't produce anything except very much scrap paper. Every day 25 railway cars leave Washington loaded with scrap paper.

Lesson 5 (14)

A Giant

A giant wanted to catch up with the Sun. He followed the Sun to where it set. It was very far way and he became very thirsty. He went to the yellow River and drank some water there. Then he went to the Great Lakes and drank more, and went on the Sea and to the Ocean, and drank and drank. Before he could catch up with the Sun he died of thirst on the way.

Unit 5

Lesson 1 (14)

In Shakespeare's days London was noisy, dangerous and very smelly. There were no drains in those days and chamber pots were often emptied out of windows. The streets in London were very narrow- only wide enough for people and horses, as well as sheep and cows on their way to the market.

There were lots of taverns in Southwark at Shakespeare's time. They served beer and wine, and all sorts of meat, fish and poultry. There were no fridges in those days and many taverns owners salted, smoked, or even sugared their meat and poultry- to slow the spoilage.

The Globe Theatre, where many of Shakespeare's plays were performed, was in Southwark, south of the River Thames. Shakespeare had to cross London Bridge, the only bridge across the river at that time. There were shops and houses on both sides of the bridge and the heads of traitors were stuck on spikes at its entrance as a warning to others.

Lesson 3 (12)

Presenter: Good morning. It's 7.55 precisely. Here is the travel news. Mary, any problems on railways this morning?

Mary Hill: Hello, Michael. I'm afraid today there are one or two problems. Unfortunately, there is a strike on the Southern Region and several trains have been cancelled. However, the strike doesn't seem to be spreading to the other regions and all trains there are running as normal. Turning to the London Underground, I'm afraid that urgent repair work may be delayed, because there have been great ruins because of the terrorist acts.

Lesson 3 (14)

Stephanie: Julia, what's your favorite book, would you say?

Julia: Oh, I think, it's series of novel about Harry Potter by J.K.Rowling.

Stephanie: Really?

Julia: I really like that. There's Hogwarts school of Witchcraft and Wizardry, which is full by unexpectation, fantasy, terror... and it's such an exciting story. I was carried away with it that didn't watch TV. I have read five books already.

Stephanie: Didn't you read all books? Oh, It's great! I saw only three films about Harry Potter. Will you give me some of them for reading?

Julia: OK. What about you? What's yours?

Stephanie: Um..., it's a book I read about two years ago and I've gone back to it since. It's called "A History of the World" in ten chapters by Julian Barnes.

Julia: Oh, it's a comedy?

Stephanie: Well, there 's humor in it but it's basically ten stories, all supposedly quite separate from one another.

Julia: Right.

Stephanie: .. but running through them there lots of common little ideas and characters.

Julia: Oh, I see.

Stephanie: The first story's about these woodworm that were on Noah's Ark and they keep reappearing....

Julia: Oh, I see. Oh that's good.

Stephanie: One of the stories is about how the... there's a pope... and his throne was eaten by the woodworm.

Julia: Yeach. So you have read it a few times, then?

Stephanie: Yeach. yes... I mean, you can read it in any order, as well, really.

Julia: Yes.

Stephanie: You can read the chapters in any order, so... yes, it's a good book.

Unit 6

Lesson 3 (7)

Characteristics of money

1. Money must be portable-small enough to be carried easily. Paper money is easier to carry in large amounts if it is available in denominations of one, five, ten, twenty, fifty, and one-hundred dollars.

2. Money must be divisible into smaller units to permit purchases of less than one dollar and purchases in odd amounts over one dollar. To make such purchases possible, coins, in fractions of one dollar-pennies, nickels, dimes, quarters, halves-are circulated

3. Money should be stable-that is, it should retain its value over time. In periods of very high inflation, people may tend to lose faith in their money; as a result, they may try to store value in assets such as gold, jewels, or real estate.

4. Whether it is in coin or paper form, money should be durable enough to withstand reasonable usage without disintegrating.

5. Part of the trust which people feel in their money lies in the difficulty of counterfeiting money. If currency were easy to counterfeit, even authentic or genuine currency would lose value.

Unit 7

Lesson 1 (9)

Active and Passive forms

Hi, come and see,

Two forms may a sentence be.

Active or passive voice, Each one a free choice,

Active in all speech, Passive for science teach.
Active form is formal, Passive also be normal.
To get Passive as we know, After a verb should object go.
In the passive object needed, Being subject firstly seated.
Object comes to be first, As a subject not to hurt.
Subject goes to the end, following “by” as a friend.

Lesson 2 (6)

A: The computers enter our home life. We can see them everywhere and can't do anything about home.

B: It's really. We live in the smartest houses. Everything is networked. The cable TV is connected to our phone, which is connected to my personal computer. ... Everything in our home runs off a universal remote

A: Yes, but there is also a virus in the house. My personal computer caught it while browsing on the public access network. My living room became a sauna, my refrigerator has been defrosted, the TV stuck on the advertisement...

B: Apparently our house isn't insured for viruses. Don't care, we call our lawyer.

A: You are laughing at me. Of course, it's excited.

Lesson 2 (12)

Cheeky Hacker

In 2001, one teenager hacked into hundreds of personal credit card numbers. Using one of the credit cards he sent a carton of medicines to Bill Gates, boss of Microsoft, one of the biggest computer companies in the world

Lesson 3 (2)

SD-ROM for storing information

Nodir: You have many CD-Rom disks. Why don't you have books and cassettes?

Hurshid: The thing is CD-ROM is actually much better than books and cassettes.

Nodir: Why is that?

Hurshid: Well, you can store so much more information on the disks: stories, concerts of pop-stars, interesting films, even pictures from the Art Galleries.

Nodir: I have to disagree. I don't think anything will ever replace the books. and nothing will replace a visit to Art Gallery to see wonderful pictures.

Hurshid: Of course not, but you can have it in your own home, can't you?

Nodir: I know, but people are always saying this. Every few years something comes along and everybody says, “Oh, this is high-tech, it’s very convenient way... We can play games, see clips of pop-stars...”

Hurshid: I expect you have got a lot of high-tech things, what about mobile –phone, for example?

Nodir: You see, it’s very convenient for communication with friends, with relatives, not depending on where you are. But there is nothing more convenient than a book.

Hurshid: I’m sure, you have ...and often use PC, don’t you? And you don’t need in CD-ROM for storing information?

Nodir: I prefer diskettes?

Hurshid: But they don’t store nearly enough information. You really need a CD-ROM for all the data you want to store.but you can use it for another aim, for example, storing books, pictures....

Nodir: Yeah, I agree...

Lesson 3 (11)

I love e-mail for speed and convenience, but I prefer writing letters. I love getting letters too. Hearing a letter drop through the letter box is much more exciting than getting an e-mail, even though it’s usually a bill in my case.

I like using Internet for searching information but spending time in the library is more interesting. Computer games are better because they are interactive. I think computer games and video games are close to becoming an art form in themselves.

Mobile phone is very useful thing. I can use mobile phone anywhere, but it can cause a disturbance when rings.
